SOCIALITIES.

Eq. T. H. Grinter, of Cadiz, was in the city yesterday.

Mr. W. R. Howell, of Paducah, was in town yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam D. Radford, of Caladonia, were in the city yesterday.

Miss Becca Adams, of Beverly, Ky., is visiting relatives on Southside—Clarksville Chronicle.

Mr. Coleman C. Slaughter has gone to Fairfax county, Va., to take charge of a private school and at the same time prosecute the study of law.

Mrs. J. E. Kizer and her grandmother, of Rutherford, Tenn., passed through the city yesterday en route to Lafayette, to visit relatives.

Mr. Stephen W. Henry, of Erlanger, Kentucky, Ky., is in the city this week having been called here by the death of his sister, Mrs. Mary M. Tandy.

Miss Maggie Hawkins and Mrs. E. G. Sobers, of Hopkinsville, arrived in Henderson, the former Friday and the latter Saturday, and are the guests of Mrs. S. A. Young.—Henderson Journal.

Miss Willie Elliott, of Hopkinsville, is spending the week in the city, the guest of Mrs. T. P. Major. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wallace, of Newstead, Ky., spent Tuesday in the city the guests of Mr. B. W. M. C. S. —Clarksville Democrat.

Patti Rosa To-morrow Night.

The charming little actress, Patti Rosa, will make her first appearance in this city to-morrow evening and she should be greeted with a full house. The Omaha Bee paid her the following compliment:

"The attraction at Boyd's last night was Patti Rosa in the title role of the comedy 'Bob.' The audience was a large one."

Patti Rosa is nothing, if not bright, winsome, and captivating. Her acting is a mosaic of caprice, airy humor, charming, dashing abandon. At every turn talents assume some new phase, so that her audience is at once surprised and captivated. Her dancing and singing are fine, and call forth loud applause.

The other members of the company are able to meet the demands put upon them. The acting of Charles Verner as "Philosophy Jack" was especially noteworthy, and he received the honors of the evening with the sobriety.

Tickets now on sale at Holland & Rodgers. Reserved seats 75 cents.

The I. A. & T. Railroad.

A representative of the Chronicle called on Col. W. S. Gordon, Thursday morning, to ascertain if there was anything new to be told concerning the I. A. & T. road. The Colonel said he didn't feel at liberty to say anything more definite than that negotiations are still pending for a union of the road with the Chesapeake & Ohio.

He informed the reporter that although this is a dull season, the road is doing a sustaining business. It has recently carried out large quantities of coal to persons living along the line. The wheat crop this year was a comparative failure, no more having been raised than was necessary for home consumption. In an ordinary year the road will do a big business in bringing wheat to this market. Its main reliance, of course, is tobacco, and it is expected shipments from the incoming crop will be very large. The travel over the road increases all the time, showing that the people in the section it penetrates are coming more and more to do all their trading in Clarksville.

In speaking of the probable completion at some future date of the through line of road, as it was originally contemplated, Colonel Gordon pointed out that the task was a much smaller one than is generally supposed. There are fifty miles of road completed and in operation from Dickson Station south. The Birmingham & Sheffield road is being rapidly built, and will shortly be completed between those two points. A large force is at work on the proposed Evansville & Jackson road between the Ohio river and Princeton. Taking all these circumstances in view, it can be seen that there is not much lacking of a through line from Evansville & Birmingham which, if built, would be one of the most profitable roads in the Union. It would run through agricultural lands, coal fields and rich agricultural districts, making the shortest route from the lakes to the gulf.—Clarksville Chronicle.

The grand jury of Jefferson county returned 183 indictments.

HERE AND THERE.

Miss Alice Hayes is selling elegant felt hats from 75cts. to $1.75.

Several town lots were sold at public auction yesterday.

Messrs. Frankel & Sons sold 28 ladies' cloaks last Saturday, at retail.

The law protecting birds in this county expired Nov. 1st.

The first blizzard of the season struck us yesterday.

The most reliable and finest watch repairing in the city, is done at M. D. Kelly's.

Mr. W. R. Thompson's new cottage on Nashville street is nearly completion.

Comparatively few people were in town yesterday for a county court day.

There were two valuable additions to the Methodist Church last Sunday morning.

If your feathers need renovating take them to Miss Alice Hayes, and save the expense of sending them off.

The A. Hall, who joined the Baptist Church last week, was not A. Hall, proprietor of the marble works.

Mr. L. H. Smithson, of Church Hill, brought in to us a stalk of corn last week with six well matured ears upon it.

Another oil man is doing the city. He gives street concerts and advertises a patent medicine possessing the usual wonderful properties.

Last Saturday was "Hallowe'en" and the Catholic church bell was tolled several times during the day and night.

The Trouton Siftings failed to show up last week and is feared that it will hereafter be spoken of in the past tense.

Burglars entered and rifled three houses in Clarksville last week. From the nature of the articles taken the thieves were evidently tramps and not professionals.

Mr. H. H. Abernathy, agent of the Equitable Life Insurance Company, settled a policy held by the late Jas. Richardson Friday. He paid $1,020 on a $1,000 policy.

Miss Alice Hayes is just in receipt of a large and elegant line of millinery goods, from New York City, to which she invites the especial attention of the ladies.

H. L. Bush, the three card monte man, is still in the city lock-up serving out at $1 a day his fine of $23. He will probably be introduced to the rock-pile before his engagement with the municipality is ended.

A colored revival at Blooming Grove, near Autloch, closed Sunday and 33 converts were baptized. The pastor, Eld. Mosely was assisted by Rev. Jas. Allenworth and the meeting was in progress for about four weeks.

Now is your time to buy you a No. 1 buggy, rockaway, phaeton or barouche, as we want to close out our stock and not carry them over until next spring. Call early and examine our stock, and let us quote you prices, lower than ever offered in the past 14 years.

The following couples were licensed to wed during the last week: Jno. B. Burdiss to Mary Ellen Pack; W. J. Ladd to Sarah H. Simpson; Jno. T. Wynn to Fannie Putman. Colored: Peter Horn to Anna Coaknut; Jno. Allgood to Millie Boyd; Morgan Wilcox to Ellen Yancy; Press Withers to Sarah Withers.

The Gant & Gaither warehouse company is composed of several well-known and substantial planters of Christian and Trigg counties. Their warehouse is located on Nashville street, opposite the passenger depot. The business is under the management of Mr. Nat Gaither, and Mr. J. K. Gant is the salesman. These gentlemen will look well to the interests of the patrons of the firm. Their card is inserted elsewhere in this impression.

Messrs. Buckner & Woodridge, proprietors of the Main Street Warehouse, are among the oldest tobacco firms in the city. Their warehouse is the largest in the city and they are prepared in every respect to do an extensive business. They have had long experience in the warehouse business and enjoy the fullest confidence of the public, as reliable, trustworthy gentlemen. They insert their advertisement in to-day's paper.

Mr. W. C. Cunningham, of Trigg Furnace, is ahead of everybody on turkey hunting up to this date. A few mornings since he killed three and crippled several more at one shot.... If the I. A. & T. R. R. should be sold to the C. O. & S. W. R. R. or to the L. & N., as is reported, it will be completed in double-quick time. Then if the people should refuse to make an effort to get a branch it may be put down as a certainty that we will be fenced out for all time to come.—Trigg Telephone.

Abernathy & Co., the pioneer warehousemen of the city, insert their advertisement in this issue. Their large and well arranged warehouse is on Nashville street, in one of the best locations in the city. The senior member of the firm has spent a great portion of his life working in the tobacco interests, and no commission merchant in the trade understands better than he, the various departments of the business. Farmers can send their tobacco to the Central Warehouse with the assurance that they will be fairly treated in all respects.

Death of Mrs. Tandy.

Mrs. Mary M. Tandy died at her home in this city last Thursday evening, at 4 o'clock. Her death was unexpected, although for several months she had been in failing health and suffering from nervous prostration superinduced by business troubles. Last spring she sustained heavy pecuniary losses in a manner that weighed heavily upon her constitution, and left her poorly prepared to stand sickness of any kind. On Tuesday evening she was taken sick and was confined to her bed the following day. By Thursday morning she had contracted a case of pneumonia which was followed by congestion of the lungs at 3 o'clock, and death an hour later. Her physician was to see her at 1 o'clock and at that time her case was not regarded as at all dangerous, but when the fatal crisis came death followed so swiftly that nothing could be done to give relief.

Deceased was a daughter of William and Cornelia V. Henry, and was born June 25, 1832. She died on the 22nd anniversary of her wedding day, having been married to Maj. C. M. Tandy, Oct. 29, 1863. She leaves three children—a daughter and a son—two brothers and an aged mother to mourn her loss. She was one of the very best of women. She spoke ill of no one, not even her enemies, and nobody could ever say she did him an injury. She was confident and true in her nature and believed every man honest until he proved the contrary. She was a devout Christian, having been a member of the Baptist church for nearly 40 years, and not only professed but practiced Christianity. She was ever ready to help those in affliction and was a benefactress to more than one who received assistance at her hands. Her hospitality was unbounded and she was never happier than when making others happy.

Her funeral was preached at the residence of her son-in-law Friday afternoon, by Rev. J. N. Prestridge, and the remains interred in the city cemetery. A large concourse of friends followed the body to its last resting place. Thus has passed away a good and true woman. In all the walks of life she acted well her part. As a wife she was her husband's true help-mate and loving companion; as a mother she was all that the word implies; as a daughter she was faithful to the last; as a sister she was gentle, kind and affectionate; as a friend and neighbor she endeavored herself to all. She was ever ready to make sacrifices for others and it was impossible for her to cherish animosities against any one. She preferred to suffer rather than to see others suffer and resentment was not to be found in her nature. She died as she had lived and her good works will live after her.

Mr. R. M. Davis has gotten up during the last week two business directories for this city. One of them is hung in the depot with the time card of the trains and the other in the postoffice with the office hours and mail arrivals and departures. The work was executed with a pen and a number of the leading business houses are represented in the advertisements. Mr. Davis is quite an expert with the pen, and can draw a picture of anything from your building to an article in your line of business. His directories are very attractive, and merchants do not hesitate to take hold of them as a good advertising medium.

The cane racket annex to Old Lip's slanty has gone, the bay window is blooming and alone. But that has nothing to do with the late medical discovery by an accomplished scholar of this city, whereby unruly school urchins are made as submissive as a cat by the use of Quinine and Gum Tolu, equal parts. This discovery should have honorable mention in the next issue of the Scientific American. Lecture rooms and Medical students will be in demand, combining utility with profit.

MR. JONES, EX-REBEL.

And How He Took in a Confiding Follower of Grant at Vicksburg.

[New York Cor. Philadelphia Times.]

"That picture of Gen. Grant looks like him when I used to know him," remarked a tall countryman one morning as he stood before a portrait of the general, which represented to him in his army uniform and was displayed in the show window of a Bowery shop.

"When did you know Gen. Grant?" asked a bystander, who was dressed as a farmer.

"I knew him in the war; I fought with Grant. I never shall forget one night before Vicksburg," continued the tall man. "It was picket on duty, our lines were near the rebels, and we picked men used to chat together, and swap tobacco, and tell stories all night, but when the day came we would blaze away at each other just as if we were strangers. The night I speak of it had been raining all day and it was chilly. We had our little fires at the posts and were managing to pass away the time pleasantly, when I heard the guard coming. I shouldered my musket and began marching up and down. We didn't want the officers to know that we did anything to the rebels except shoot at them. As the guard came up I saw that one of the soldiers was Gen. Grant himself. I presented arms. 'Private,' said the 'old man,' as he stopped in front of me, 'I heard you talking with some one, and I think you were talking with the enemy.' I thought I was going to be shot for treason, but I made up my mind not to lie about it, so I said: 'Yes, sir; I was cold and hungry and I wanted a little coffee and my friend over there wanted some tobacco, so we traded. Do you mean to say that you bargained with the enemy?' 'Yes, sir,' I answered. 'Did you get the coffee?' he asked. 'Yes, sir,' I said and I pointed to a pot that was boiling on the fire. 'Is it good coffee?' he asked, as he walked over to the fire. 'Yes, sir,' I answered. 'Well, we'll see about this,' said the general. 'Give me a cup.' I gave him one and the 'old man' sat down and drank it. When he got through he said: 'Now, private, you have told the truth; that coffee is good, but in the future you had better get your supplies from our own quartermaster. You bet I was relieved when he walked on.

"Where you the soldier who borrowed that coffee?" asked the farmer with intense interest.

"Yes," replied the tall countryman; "why do you ask?"

"Because I was the tall rebel," "Shake; let's go somewhere, and talk it over. My name is Jones."

Arm in arm the two ex-enemies moved through the crowd down the streets to fight their old battles over again.

About 5 o'clock a tall man, who gave the name of James W. Brown and residence Ulster county, called at the Clark street police station, and asked for the arrest of an ex-rebel named Jones, who had sold him a small bar of lead wrapped in gold foil for $300, his silver watch and return ticket. The identity of Mr. Jones is suspected by the police.

A Cautious Man.

He was a mathematical cuss, and always engaged in making intricate calculations on paper. The marriage was to take place on Friday, but he suggested to his prospective mother-in-law that it had better take place on Thursday.

"Why do you wish it changed?" she asked suspiciously.

"Well," said he, "I have been making a calculation, and I find that my silver wedding will come on Saturday evening, and that would never do, as that is the evening I have to go to the house."

—Texas Siftings.

—We have a friend in Oneonta of the legal profession who is the father of a bright boy of six summers. In attending a funeral recently he took this lad with him. During the early part of the service the boy maintained a proper decorum, but toward the close he grew restless and wished to speak to his father, who whispered with some sternness in his ear: "You must keep quiet."

"Just let me speak one word to you, papa, and I will." "Well, what is it?" "There are twenty-one bald-headed men in the room besides yourself." —Cooperstown (N. Y.) Freeman's Journal.

—The attempts to raise vegetables in Greenland are not marked with any great success. At six-four degrees latitude, however, carrots prosper, turnips come to perfection, and cabbage produce tolerably large leaves. Potatoes never get larger than marbles.
